DEAN OF ALUMNI AFFAIRS

As the Co-Deans of Alumni Affairs, we believe this semester is definitely one to cherish. Firstly, thank you to those who have assisted in the completion of The Traveler. The many respectable men who reside in the Halls of Acacia continue to model excellence and human service are ones dear to us and we wouldn't want to miss the opportunity to exhibit this.

Throughout the semester, Acacia has recruited a pledge class of 6 members. Young men who wish to belong to the Acacian Fraternity and to serve for eternity. Amongst this process, the brothers have accomplished goals of re-establishing Acacia's social network, achieving financial stability, and sustaining the home we call Northcote. These are few of the many accomplishments that we would like to display to you alumni.

We ask again to all alumni to continue reaching out to us Actives as well as the Corporation Board. As much as we would like to inform you all of updates within the house, we also want to learn from those before us.

The Traveler is the official newsletter of the Cornell University Chapter of Acacia Fraternity. It is published semi-annually and mailed to alumni, fellow chapters, friends, and family of the active members of the chapter.

The current and past issues of The Traveler can be found on our website: www.cornellacacia.org.

Message from Our Corporation Board President

Greetings!

For the first time in many years, there were no major maintenance projects performed over the summer. I don't know if this is the proverbial calm before the storm, or if we have done such a good job of preventive maintenance that we're finally reaping the rewards! We did have the long-awaited Bar extension built (planned maintenance) near the pool table to cover the waste pipe that is only partially submerged in the concrete floor. And, the vanity tops in the Suite Bathroom and Center Room Bathroom were both replaced because neither had an overflow drain and we didn't want to risk water damage due to an overflowing sink. Of course, there are always things that wear out or break (showerheads, window screens, doorknobs, etc.) and trees that get damaged by Mother Nature which require the attention of an arborist. And, there seems to be an ever-growing list of new things that we need to do (e.g. fence in the backyard to comply with recent IFC regulations regarding Social Events). And, there are things that simply don't hold up to the extreme conditions that are part of fraternal living (e.g. Bar Room radiator covers that rust/corrode due to beer spillage). So, the Corporation has plenty to spend money on, but little in reserve. We are saving for the "rainy day" when the 28 year-old shingled roof decides it is time for replacement.

The Active Chapter recently signed six Fall Pledges, which is unprecedented for Acacia (we're lucky to get 1 or 2 each year). The house is still not completely filled, but I'm optimistic that we will have a full house next fall. The future of Cornell Acacia will hopefully be positive, but without Alumni financial support, it will not be. I continue to be perplexed by the fact that the majority of our 600+ alumni choose to NOT even pay their annual dues (which can be done via snail-mail or PayPal www.paypal.com to AcaciaCorpBoard@cornell.edu). Also, please check out the Cornell Acacia website (<https://www.cornellacacia.org/>) which has recently undergone a major overhaul. We still need your financial assistance, now. While some of you might have financial, personal, or health issues, most of you do not! To those alumni who generously financially support Cornell Acacia, our heartfelt thanks! To the rest of you, please help out YOUR fraternity.

Please email or call me if you have comments, concerns, suggestions, want to get involved, or simply want to say hello. It would be wonderful if I heard from some of you so I know you are as concerned, yet encouraged, as I am about the future of our beloved Acacia. The Mailbag column continues to be extremely short of news to share! Certainly there must be news (good and bad), so please share it.

Fraternally,

Steven L. Stein 1973 (787)

Venerably Speaking

Moving On With Our Lives

DARIAN PENICHT GARCIA-JASSO (1216) '20

VENERABLE DEAN

The hardest thing about being an Acacian is leaving the house. It is a slow and painful process where we first see our older brothers abandoning us, then we realize the people that rushed us are all absent, and then we come to terms with the fact that we will be next. Although I will have one last semester after this one it will be a bittersweet one. Brother Leung, who was one of my first friends in Acacia is graduating a second time. He is not the only one getting a masters this semester either. Brother Covarrubias, the only older brother left from when I joined the house will also be moving on from Cornell. I could not be happier for them, seeing them accomplish their goals and going to do great things in their field; and I know I will see them again soon too. Yet, I find myself, the oldest Acacian in Northcote, and I wonder: once everyone from the Acacia I first met, will it still be Acacia?

This must hardly be an original thought. Our legacy at Cornell spans over one hundred years; surely there was a brother with this same question, this doubt, this fear. We are often educated on "why Acacia is", "what Acacia means", yet, "who Acacia is" varies by semester with Northcote's inhabitants. I have heard it from alumni too, and you, the reader, can probably also attest to this. The cause of this is also one of our strengths: every brother can make an impact. Acacia empowers every member to bring about change and a lasting influence is possible for he who dares. The effects of such an experience can carry on to one's life for great benefit. It gives one the confidence to challenge status quos in their social or professional life. Ultimately, it reminds me that we strive to "have a greater influence in the communities in which we may reside". Our founding axioms still ring true nowadays.

Although "who Acacia is" changes, I think that we can answer "what does an Acacian have?" Every semester we look for qualities in our newer members that fit our ideals. Because ideals and values, unlike personalities, are unwavering in men of character. Selflessness is often misunderstood by the cynics as a weakness, yet in a group like ours, it is our collective strength. Alone, there is just so much one can achieve. When we know that we can truly trust our brothers' altruism then we have the courage to push our ambitions further than we ever thought. Were we to fall or stray from our righteous path, we could not doubt that our brothers' concern or harsh reprimand comes from a place of concern. It provides the basis of safety in our home and trickles down to every daily interaction.

This guiding trait also extends to every person we know. Often we hear about the amiable nature of our fraternity and the quality of our brothers' characters. Nothing could ever make me prouder. In my own subjective interpretation of our motto, there could never be anything more human than kindness. I find solace in knowing that even after I leave, all Acacians can come back to different brothers that carry the same legacy, same values, and same ambitions as did we all.

Fraternally,

Darian Penichet Garcia-Jasso

Achieving Financial Stability

DAIKI TSUNODA (1229) '21

TREASURER

Provided the uncertainty of the number of members both joining and leaving, budgeting/overlooking the finances of Acacia has been a challenging process. However, serving as the treasurer has been a very valuable experience for me. The position has taught me how to file a tax exemption form, or more importantly, create a budget that not only satisfies our short-term needs, but also contributes to our financial sustainability in the long term.

Compared to last semester, our reserve has increased significantly with the induction of 7 new brothers in Spring 2018, and this positive trend is expected to continue with our Fall Pledge Class amounting to 6 more brothers. While in my previous article I mentioned how large projects such as renting an annex would not be feasible in our current state; if we are able to maintain a strong rush process, as well as budget effectively, such a process is no longer a dream, but rather an option. That being said, having more is always better – at least in terms of money. As mentioned, the unstable nature of fraternities is an inherent risk we always have to tackle with. Therefore, as my term comes to an end this semester, my goal is to continue this trajectory by transferring the past treasurers' knowledge to the new treasurer.

Finally, I would like to use this opportunity to thank the past treasurers for making processes such as filing the tax exemption form significantly easier. Without the guidance, I don't know how I would have been able to complete such tasks. Though I won't be able to maintain my legacy in terms of documentation, (because the ones we have right now are extensive enough) through my budgeting, I plan to plant money trees for the future as it is the perfect place for shade.

Brotherhood Bonding

ARMONI BRIGHTLEY BAILEY (1242) '22
BROTHERHOOD CHAIR

This year, my focus as Brotherhood Chair is to develop a stronger bond between the brothers in the Halls of Acacia; therefore, I am planning to host a bowling event, a variety of house tournaments, and several professional development workshops. These events will help foster a brotherhood in which people not only strive for improvement within themselves and those around them but also creates an environment in which long-lasting memories are founded.

Re-establishing Acacia

LORENZO DE ALBA (1237) '22 & VASILIOS ZAHARIOUDAKIS (1242) '22
JUNIOR DEAN

As Co-Social Chairmen, we have taken Fall semester as a chance to re-establish the reputation of Acacia. To begin with, we have thrown a variety of themed parties in order to appeal to a greater Cornell audience. It is in our greatest interest for freshmen students to better learn our interests, our brothers, and our values. By establishing a theme, we can make sure that the people attending will know our brothers' backgrounds, cultures, interests and thus find people that share their experiences within Cornell, thus maintaining, expanding, and manifesting the legacy of the diverse, social environment of Acacia.

Patience No Rush in Recruitment

TYLER SANDERS (1236) '21

RECRUITMENT CHAIR

This fall semester began with Cornell's semesterly Orientation and PREPARE Week. These two volunteer opportunities allow us, as brothers, to connect with incoming freshman and give them their first possible taste of Cornell. Prior to the semester, we strive to make our events as memorable as we can for our guests. This rush season included a few IFC events along with events that we held at and out of the house such as barbecues, tournaments, and bowling. One of my personal favorite events is something we call BT which means "Back Then" where every Thursday we get together to reminisce on stories from past times.

We've gotten a pretty large fall rush class and they're only the finest of new members. My plan for Rush Chair includes, but is not limited to, making sure we have better sorority connections along with keeping an active contact list of PNMs for next semester. I would also like to thank Brother Penichet Garcia Jasso for collaborating with me to make rush as smooth as possible.

Looking Back as We Move Forward

RAYMOND LIAO (1228) '21

TECHNOLOGIST

It's a pleasure to serve as the technologist for our brotherhood. Taking upon this responsibility gives me large shoes to fill, literally and metaphorically. Brother Schultz made huge strides as our technologist last semester by helping Steve upgrade the entire wifi network throughout the house, streamlining and fixing any problems with the house printer in the office, and trying to gain access to the house's server which stored a myriad of resources over the years. With help from Brother Choi, our website was overhauled last winter break but not much progress has been made since. I have made getting the website up to date and visually appealing a priority for my term as technologist. In addition, I would like to work alongside Steve once more to consolidate all the wifi networks in the house to one single network, which would make it easier for brothers and guests alike to access it. Besides those two projects, I would like to get our security cameras up and running and push for a fundraising campaign to purchase a new television for the commons to keep our leisure time up to date with the times, from 1080p to 4K UHD. As we enter the next decade of the 2000's, the house should be up to date technologically to help ensure the best experience for all of our brothers and it's my duty to provide counsel to make it successful.

LUCAS ANTHONY FRANCIS WESSILIUS (1232) '21
SENIOR DEAN

This semester we have had 6 new brothers join our ranks, all of whom we are ecstatic to have in the house. In the time that we've had with them, I've come to get to know each individual and can say with certainty that they are exactly the group we need, bringing energy, leadership, and brotherhood into the house and giving the Acacia fraternity a good name. Additionally, while they started out with many of them meeting for the first time at induction, they have come to become a strong group and their pledge class bond is one of the strongest ones I have seen. I am excited to see them take up leadership positions in the future and help continue to make Northcote a great place to live.

As this is my last semester as the Senior Dean, I've been attempting to put more of the pledge process on the Senior Dean drive, providing all my insights over the three semesters I have served as such. My hope is that this will be of use to future Senior Deans in figuring out how they will want to run the pledge process and ensure the success for the future of Acacia.

Acacia itself is in good hands with this future pledge class. I could see all of them stepping up to become leaders in the future and filling the shoes of those who've come before them. All of them fit well into Acacia, and their own strong identities and personalities fit well within the house, showing that being an Acacian is something that distinguishes an individual from the rest; being the best of the best. I'm excited for the future as we continue to grow the house and grow as a house to strive for greatness.

COLIN BENEDICT

Fort Covington, NY

Colin Benedict is a Kaniekehaka Mohawk from the Akwesasne Mohawk Territory. He is a junior studying in the School of Industrial and Labor Relations. After graduation, Colin hopes to pursue a Ph.D. in Sociology researching Labor Leading on Climate Change, approaching it from an Indigenous Philosophies perspective. His hobbies include hockey, lacrosse, and waterskiing. Colin joined Acacia because of the inclusive nature of the Fraternity. It is rare at Cornell that you find communities that respect and celebrate individuality, however, the brothers at Acacia exemplify the traits of inclusion, excellence, and respect.

SHUBAM MATHUR

Raleigh, NC

Shubham is a sophomore in the College of Engineering with a passion for helping people and creating new initiatives for problems he sees in the world. He was born in Raleigh, North Carolina and lived there until coming to Cornell, but growing up with immigrant parents and learning the traditions of India along with the American traditions allowed him to capture a unique perspective and nurture interests across a wide range of genres. This year, he started Cornell University's first Combat Robotics team (CUCR) and is leading a group of 70 students to several competitions around the US as well as raising several thousand dollars to fund the team. Shubham is a fan of interior design and enjoys spending time on home improvement like lighting systems, bed frames, kitchen appliance holders, and more. He wishes to join Acacia to live and spend time with his new brothers and make the house an even more fashionable place than it already is.

ANDREW ARDIZZONE

Syosset, NY

Andrew Ardizzone is majoring in Atmospheric Science. He is a senior and is graduating in spring 2020. He is interested in finding a job in the field of meteorology but is not exactly sure where yet. His hobbies include playing piano and guitar as well as wrecking Kent and Toby in FIFA. Andrew is interested in Acacia because he has been hanging around at the house for the last two years and found that he enjoys the brotherhood and vibe.

New Pledges

KIRAN TIN
Charlotte, NC

Kiran Tin is from Charlotte, North Carolina and has spent his entire life living there before coming to Cornell. Kiran is majoring in America Studies in the College of Arts and Sciences and is graduating in 2021. He is passionate about music, soccer, and history. He joined Acacia for a simple reason because he wants to be here. He loves the people, the house, and the sense of community they gave.

MOHAMED ABDALLA
Fairfax, VA

Mohamed Abdalla (Mo) is a sophomore in the College of Engineering. Mo is from the DMV, Northern Virginia. He moved to VA from Dubai 3 years ago. Mo's major is Computer Science. His favorite sport is Track & Field. His favorite event is the mile or 2 miles if he is feeling it. Mo comes from a multicultural background, which is why he likes Acacia; living and growing up with a diverse family is one of the very reasons for his interest in being a brother at Acacia Fraternity.

HAKAN CAMLI
Chicago, IL

Hakan Camli is from Chicago and is majoring in Government and Economics. He is an inquisitive individual aspiring to bring new ideas and unique energy to Acacia. His interests are varied and include multiple fields of study. From basketball to political science to Physics, his desire lies only in learning and growing as an individual.

Live to Serve

RAYMOND LIAO (1228) '21

PHILANTHROPY CHAIR

Service has always been a significant part of my life, even when I was a child. It began when my mother put me into the Boy Scouts in the 4th grade. I had the opportunity to work with many youth leaders and Eagle Scout projects that completely changed communities for the better. In high school, I was heavily involved in Key Club, the largest and oldest student-led community service organization. I had the opportunity to serve as a Lieutenant Governor my senior year where I supervised the 9 Key Clubs in my borough of Brooklyn. In that position, I got to travel across all five boroughs and work alongside amazing like-minded individuals to better our homes, schools, and communities.

During my time as Venerable Dean, I made it my mission to help embody our motto of "Human Service" in each and every brother. The two semesters of my time in office had our chapter at the top of the IFC's GIVE Initiative, an initiative that partnered Cornell fraternities to local events in the greater Ithaca community. In my mission to continue this momentum, I've continued to enforce a minimum of 10 service hours per brother as they go about their time on campus. Additionally, I want to improve our presence in the community as well by asking brothers to find causes that are close to their hearts and find two that we can contribute to. Acacia continues to give back to the community both within Cornell and Ithaca but the sky's the limit for our impact.

Health Is Wealth

TYLER SANDERS (1236) '21

ATHLETICS CHAIR

The fall semester began with a number of brothers ready and willing to run over the other intramural soccer teams. I couldn't have been more happy about the teams' efforts and the connections among the brothers involved. Along with intramural soccer, brothers have been urging each other to attend gym workouts together. Specifically, Brother Angeles Taveras and Brother Raymond Liao have been actively holding us all accountable for getting to the gym on our scheduled basis. As Athletics Chair, I will continue to promote a healthy home with fun simple activities such as having a football catch in the yard so we can all stay fit. As fall is getting closer to winter we will have to plan accordingly. I will continue to stay adamant about workout habits and all intramural opportunities. I've seen interest in intramurals such as basketball (best sport), flag football, and rugby. I plan on holding workout sessions for basketball since we can all use some help draining threes.

If You Can't Stand the Heat ...

JUNIOR STEWARD

This past semester I have had the pleasure of serving as the chapter's Junior Steward – a rewarding position that I feel has both brought me closer to the house as a whole and challenged me with responsibility for such a vital part of the house as the Kitchen. At the center of it all is our incredible house chef, Gio, whose culinary experience and creativity keep us fed and happy. I view my responsibility as Junior steward in this regard to be twofold: First, to maintain a healthy and positive relationship between the chapter and our favorite chef; Second, to ensure that Gio, alongside our daily kitchen cleanup crews, has a sanitary, functional, and organized workspace to craft the meals that we enjoy so much. A full belly begets a happy life and a healthy mind.

I am also happy to say that our kitchen is seeing more use than ever, as many Brothers, as well as several of our current pledges, enjoy the art of cooking as well. Whether it be for a quick bite before classes, or for a midnight snack, the kitchen sees nearly constant use – a fact that makes me even more proud that our Chapter works to keep our culinary space clean and presentable. I fully intend to ensure that successive Junior Stewards keep up the good habits and work ethic that have worked to make Acacia's meals among the best at Cornell.

Robert E. Baker 1953 (537) shared that when he read the Spring 2018 Traveler and saw that Bill Burnett 1953 (490) had passed away, it reminded him that Bill was responsible for his joining Acacia. Bob keeps in touch with Scott DePalma 1953 (492) who was a roommate during Bob's 5th year. Acacia today seems much different than in the early 1950's. He recalls a really good fellowship of brothers but less involvement in the type of activities featured in recent Travelers. Bob tried to give Acacia as much as Dusty Rhodes (the czar of the Chem E School) would permit, but his grade suffered the year he was Venerable Dean. A scholarship student with a very limited budget, Bob values his Acacia experience quite highly and won't ever forget those years.
